GEP, a leading provider of procurement services and solutions, has been included in the Supply & Demand Chain Executive magazine's list of 100 "Great Supply Chain Projects," for the seventh time. This year, the magazine focused its "100" feature on supply chain transformation projects that have had a significant impact on the firms going through spend analysis and spend management implementations.

"GEP is honored to be listed as one of the SDCE 100s for the seventh time. We continue to help our clients make the most of their procurement efforts with innovative approaches to strategic sourcing, spend analysis, P2P and procurement outsourcing," said Neha Shah, Co-founder and Executive Vice President, GEP.

Through an online submission process, the magazine collected information on key parameters of supply chain transformation project at GEP. These included information on the objectives, scope, timeline and results of the project. The submissions were evaluated based on scope of the project; creative application of GEP solutions and services; extent of the business results and clarity of submission.

"Our goal with this year's '100' is to put the spotlight on successful and innovative transformation projects that are delivering bottom-line value to small, medium and large enterprises across the different functions that comprise the supply chain," said Barry Hochfelder, Editor of Supply & Demand Chain Executive.
